

Brush Lettering

in Water Color with Tony Segale

July 26, 27 & 28, 2019
9:00am- 4:00pm

Participants in this workshop will learn how to handle a brush for lettering, and develop the skills to render the three basic lettering styles – sans serif, roman and script. After practice and understanding of ‘swinging the brush’, we will use that skill in the painting of a watercolor.

Tony has been practiced in brush lettering and calligraphy for over 30 years, and will provide paper and paint to practice the letter strokes. You may also bring your own watercolor or calligraphy supplies for use the second or third days. If you are new to watercolors, a list of basic materials will be provided.

The workshop will begin promptly at 9am, end by 4pm. We will break for 45-60mins for lunch. Several sandwich shops are close by. If you would like to bring your lunch, there is a small kitchen with refrigerator, and a small counter top oven.

Supplies provided will be Utrecht 230 Sablette brushes, yardsticks, charcoal, paint and paper for practicing our lettering skills. Feel free to bring any supplies for lettering that you use when working with water media.

Tony's favorite brush for hand lettering in water media, and a wonderful tool for watercolor painting is 3/4" or 1" Jack Richeson 9010 Signature Series ... www.cheapjoes.com. The 1" width is suggested because you will find it easier to learn to create large letters before you render smaller letters. The Jack Richeson 9010 signature Series has a longer brush handle that will help you have fun when you 'swing the brush'.

The most important tool you will need is a relaxed and fun attitude, we will have a swinging good time. Finished lettering or paintings are less important than the process, and the encounter with other artists of the same interest. This workshop is for all levels of experience.
